

METHODOLOGY

Following is the carefully crafted IAF formula for infiltration into the parish: 1) Spend months and years laying the groundwork for community organizing by identify and recruiting supporters. This is typically done through the Just Faith program. 2) Announce the new community organizing program. Note that parishioners will decide which local program to pursue and repeatedly stress that Catholic values will never be compromised. 3) Quickly schedule home meetings and ask the attendees in their isolated groups to share their concerns for their families and their community. 4) Adjourn the home meetings and let lead organizers decide which parish project is actually undertaken. Invariably, the lead organizers will select a modest, worthwhile and innocuous project, which can be easily achieved. 5) Herein lies the rub. If the parish wants to pursue a project that supports traditional marriage or is pro-life, the outside leader will explain that such projects are too divisive and that we must select a project that is acceptable to the non-Catholic churches in the larger community program. They will insist that consensus is more important than any one particular issue. In other words, we will be asked to conform to the world for the sake of consensus. The effect of this formula reveals the true intent: pro-life Catholics are marginalized; - pushed to the back of the bus, and the strongest voice in America for life in the womb is muffled. So much for not compromising Catholic values. Know them by their fruits. Alinski lives!
